VOLUME VIII. MILWAUKEE DAILY SENTINEL. NEW SERIES

From the California Courier.

THE EXILE.

A Pilgrim from the Eastern shores,
Stood on Nevada's strand;
A tear was in his either eye,
A pick-axe in his hand—
A tear was in his either eye,
And in his left, to match,
There would have been another tear,
But for a healing patch.

And other patches too he wore,
Which on his garments hung,
And two were on that ill-starr'd spot,
Where mothers smite their young;
His hat, that was a "Costar" once,
Was broken now, and dim—
And wild his bearded features gleamed
From out the tattered brim.

The Pilgrim stood; and looking down
As one who is in doubt,
He sighed to see how fast that pair
Of boots were wearing out;
And while he filled an ancient pipe,
His wretchedness to cheer,
He stopped with hurried hand to pick
A flea from out his ear.

Then spake that Pilgrim from the East:
"I am a wretched man;
For love of gold has lured me to
The shovel and the pan.
I saw in dreams, a pile of gold
Its dazzling radiance pour—
No more my visions are of gold:
Alas! my hopes are o'er.

"Thrice have I left this cursed spot,
But mine it was to learn
That fatal truth, that dwarf we are,
To dust we shall return.
So here condemned by fates unkind,
I pass my wretched span,
And mourn, too late, that e'er I took
The shovel and the pan."

The Pilgrim paused, for now he heard
His distant comrade's shout;
From his pipe he drew a parting whiff,
And knocked the ashes out;
And stooping as he gathered up
His shovel and his pan;
The breeze his latest accent bore—
"I am a wretched man."

The Angel over the Right Shoulder,
OR THE
Beginning of a Year.

"A woman's work is never done," said Mrs. James, "I am sure I thought I should get through by sundown, and here it's this lamp, now, on which I must go and spend half an hour before it will burn."

"Don't you wish you had never been married?" said Mr. James, with a good-natured laugh.

"Yes," rose to Mrs. James's lip, but a glance at her husband and two little urchins, who, with sparkling eyes and glowing cheeks, were tumbling over him, checked that reply.

"I should like the good without the evil, if I could have it," she said.

"I am sure you have no great evils to endure," replied her husband.

"That is just all you gentlemen know about it. How should you like it, if you could not get an uninterrupted half hour to yourself from morning to night? What would become of your favorite studies?"

"I do not think there is any need of that. I know your work could be arranged so systematically as to give you some time to call your own."

"Well, all I wish is," was the reply, "that you could follow me round for one day, and see what I have to do."

When the lamp was trimmed, the conversation was resumed. Mr. James had given the subject some thought.

"Wife," said he, "I have a plan to propose, and wish you to promise me that you will accede to it. It is an experiment, and I wish you to give it a fair trial to please me."

After hesitating awhile, as she had great reason to suppose that it would be quite impracticable, she at length promised.

"This is my plan. I want you to take two hours out of every day for your own private use. Make a point of going up into your room and locking yourself in, and let the work go undone, if it must. Spend this time in the way most profitable to yourself. Now I shall bind you down to your promise for one month; at the end of that time, if it has proved a total failure, we will try some other way."

"When shall I begin?"

"To-morrow."

To-morrow came. Mrs. James had selected the two hours before dinner as the most convenient for her; and as the family dined at one o'clock, she was to have finished her morning work, be dressed, and in her room at eleven. Hearty as her efforts were to accomplish this, the appointed hour found her with her work but half done; yet, true to her promise, she retired to her room, and turned the key of the door.

After spending perhaps half an hour in forming her plans for study, she drew up her table, placed her books before her, prepared pen and paper, and commenced with much enthusiasm. Scarcely was the pen dipped in ink, when there was a trampling of little feet along the hall, and a loud pounding on the chamber door.

"Mamma, mamma, I cannot find my mittens, and Frank is going without me, to slide!"

"Go to Amy, daughter; mamma is busy now."

"Amy is busy, too, and says she can't leave the baby."

Thus the child began to cry. The easiest way for Mrs. James to settle the difficulty, and indeed the only way, was to go and hunt up the missing articles. Then a parley must be held with Frank, to induce him to wait for his sister, and the little girl's tears must be dried, and little hearts must be set right before the children were sent out to play, and a little lecture given, too, on the necessity of putting things where they belonged. Time slipped away, and when Mrs. James returned to her study, her watch told her that one hour was gone. She quietly resumed her task, and was getting well under weigh again, when a heavier step was heard, and her door was once more tried. Now Mr. James must be admitted.

"Mary," said he, "do come and put on a string for me. There is not a bosom in my drawer in order. I am in a hurry. I ought to have been down town an hour ago.

Mrs. James went for her work basket, and followed him. The tape was sewed on, then a button needed fastening, and then a rip in his glove must be mended.

Mrs. James took his glove, and stitched away at it, with a smile lurking in the corners of her mouth.

"What are you laughing at?" inquired her husband.

"To think how famously your plan works," replied she.

"I declare!" exclaimed he, "was this your study hour? I am sorry, but what can a man do? he cannot go down town without a shirt bosom.

"Certainly not," replied the wife, quietly.

When her liege lord was fairly equipped, Mrs. James returned to her room again. About half an hour remained to her, of which she was determined to make the most. Once more was her place found, and her pen dipped in ink, when there was another disturbance in the entry. Amy had returned with the baby from his walk. She took him into the nursery to get him to sleep. Now the only room in the house where Mrs. James could have a fire to herself, was the room adjoining the nursery. The ordinary noise of the children did not disturb her, but the very extraordinary one which Master Charley felt called upon to make, when he was fairly upon his back in the cradle, was rather more than could be borne by most mothers without seriously disturbing the train of their thoughts. The words of the author rose and fell with the howls and screams of the child. Mrs. James closed her book until the storm should be overpast. Soon after quiet was restored, the children came in from sliding, crying with cold fingers. Just as the dinner bell rung, Mrs James closed her book in despair.

"How did you succeed with your studies this morning?" inquired Mr. James.

"Famously," replied Mrs. James. "I read about seventy pages of German, and as many more of French.

"Why, I am sure I did not hinder you long."

"No; yours was only one of a dozen interruptions."

"Oh, well, you must not be discouraged. You cannot expect to succeed the first time. Persist in it, until the family learn that if they want any thing of you, they must come at some other time."

"But what is a man to do," replied his wife; "he cannot go down town with a string off his bosom and a rip in his glove."

"Well, I was in a bad fix," replied Mr. James. "I dare say it will not happen again. At any rate, try the month out, and see what will come of it."

The second day of trial happened to be a stormy one; and as the morning was very dark, Bridget overslept herself, and breakfast was one hour late. This last hour Mrs. James could not recover. Eleven o'clock came, and her morning work was but half done. With a mind disturbed and depressed, she left things in the suds as they were, and retired punctually to her study. She found, however, that it was impossible to fix her attention upon any thing which required thought. Neglected duties haunted her as ghosts do the guilty conscience. Finding she was really doing nothing with her books, and wishing not to lose the morning wholly, she commenced a letter. Bridget came to her door before she had written half a page.

"What shall we have for dinner, ma'am? There aint no marketing come, and you did not tell me what to get."

"Have some steaks."

"We aint got any."

"Well, I will send out for some."

"Now, there was no one to send but Amy, and Mrs. James knew it. With a sigh she put away her letter and went into the nursery.

"Amy, Mr. James has forgotten the marketing. I wish you would run over to the provision store and order some beefsteaks; I will stay with the baby."

Amy was none too well pleased to be sent on this errand. She remarked, "that she must first change her dress."

"Be as quick as possible, then," said Mrs. James, "for I am particularly engaged this morning."

Amy neither obeyed, nor disobeyed; but managed to take her own time in reality, though without any direct determination to do so. Mrs. James thinking she might get along a sentence or two in the nursery, took her German book in; but to this arrangement Charley would by no means consent. Mamma must show him the kitties in the book; whether there or not it was all one to him—but amused he must be. Half her second day's time of trial was gone, when Amy came in; and with a sigh, Mrs. James returned to her room. Before one o'clock she had been called down into the kitchen twice on some important business relating to the dinner, and for this day not one entire page of a letter had been written.

On the third morning she rose early, made every provision for dinner and for the comfort of the family, which she deemed necessary, and elated by success, in good spirits and with good courage, she entered her study precisely at eleven o'clock. Now she was to have a fine time of it. Her books were opened, and a hard lesson summoned to the conflict. Scarcely had she read a line, when she heard the door bell ring.

"Somebody wants to see you in the parlor, Mrs. James."

"Tell them I am engaged, Bridget."

"I told them you were to home, ma'm, and they gave me their name, but I did not exactly understand."

Mrs. James was obliged to go—to smile when she felt sober, to be social when her thoughts were elsewhere. Her friends, however, seemed to find her agreeable, for they made a long call; and when they rose to go, others came. So in the most unsatisfactory chit-chat all this morning went.

On the next day, Mr. James invited company to tea, and Mrs. James was obliged to give up her study. On the day following she was obliged to keep her bed with sick headache; and on Saturday, Amy having extra work to do, the charge of the baby devolved upon her. Thus passed the first week.

True to her promise, Mrs. James patiently persevered for a month in her efforts to secure to herself this fragment of her broken time, with what success the week's history can tell. With its close, closed the month of December. Being particularly occupied on the last day of the old year in getting ready for the morrow's festival, it was near the last hour of the day when she made her good night's call in the nursery. She went to the crib to look at baby; there he lay fast asleep in his innocence and beauty. She kissed his rosy cheeks gently, and stroked softly his golden hair, and pressing his little dimpled hands within hers, she drew the warm covering more closely around him, carefully tucking it in, then stealing one more kiss, she left him to his slumbers, and sat down on her daughter's bed. She was also sweetly asleep, with her dolly hugged closely to her. Her mother smiled, but soon it seemed as if graver and sadder thoughts filled her mind, as indeed they did. She was thinking of her disappointed plans. To her, not only the past month, but the past year, seemed to have been one of fruitless effort; it seemed to her broken and disjointed; even her hours of religious meditation had been encroached upon and distracted. She had accomplished nothing that she could see, but keep her house and family; and to her saddened thoughts even this seemed to have been but indifferently done. Yearnings for something better than this she was conscious of; unsatisfied longings often clouded an otherwise bright day for her, and yet all this seemed to lie in a region dim and misty, which she could not penetrate.

What did she need then? To see some of the results of her life-work? To be conscious of some unity of purpose, some weaving together of these life-threads, now so broken and single?

She felt, she was quite sure, no desire to shrink from duty, however humble; but she sighed for some comforting assurance of what was duty. Her pursuits, conflicting as they did with her tastes, seemed to her frivolous. She felt there was some better way of living, which she, from want of energy of character or energy of principle had failed of discovering. As she leaned over her child, her tears now fell fast upon that young brow.

How earnestly wished that mother that she could shield her child from the disappointments, and self-reproaches, and mistakes, from which she was then suffering—that the little one might take up life where she could give it to her, moulded by all her own experience. It would have been a great comfort, could she have felt that she had fought the battle for both. Yet she knew that it could not be so—that we must all learn for ourselves what those things are that make for our peace. With tears still in her eyes, she gave the good night to the child, and with soft step entered the adjoining room, and there fairly kissed out the old year on another chubby cheek which nestled among the pillows—then she sought her own rest.

Soon she found herself in a singular place. She was traversing a vast plain. No trees were visible, save those which skirted the distant horizon—on their tops rested a wreath of golden clouds. Before her, travelling towards that distant light, was a female. Little children were about her, sometimes in her arms, and sometimes at her side. As she journeyed on, she busied herself caring for them. Now she soothed them when weary—now she taught them how to travel—and again she warned them of the pit-falls and stumbling blocks in the way. She helped them over the one and taught them to be wary of the other. She talked to them of that golden light which she kept constantly in view, and towards which she seemed to be hastening with her little flock. But what was most remarkable was, that, all unknown to her, two golden clouds floated above her, on which reposed two angels. Before each was a golden book and a pen of gold. One angel, with mild and loving eyes, peered constantly over the right shoulder, and the other over the left. They followed her from the rising to the setting of the sun. They watched every word and look, and deed, no matter how trivial. When it was good, the angel over the right shoulder, with a glad smile, wrote it down in his golden book; when evil, however trivial, the angel over the left shoulder wrote it down in his book. Then he kept his sorrowful eyes on her until he found penitence for the evil, upon which he dropped a tear upon his record and blotted it out, and both angels rejoiced.

To the looker-on it seemed as if the traveler did little else but what was worthy such careful record. Sometimes she did but bathe the weary feet of her children, and the angel over the right shoulder wrote it down. Sometimes she did but wait patiently to lure back some little truant who had taken a step in the wrong direction, and the angel over the right shoulder wrote it down. Sometimes, with her eyes fixed upon the golden horizon, she became so intent upon her own progress, as to let the little pilgrims at her side languish or stray; then it was the angel over the left shoulder who lifted her golden pen and made the entry, and followed her with sorrowing eyes, seeking to blot it out. If, wishing to hasten on her journey, she left the little ones behind, it was the sorrowing angel who recorded her progress.

Now the observer felt, as she looked on, that this was a faithful record, and was to be kept to that journey's end. These strong clasps of gold on those golden books, also impressed her with the belief that they were to be sealed for a future opening. Her sympathies were warmly excited for the traveler, and with a beating heart she quickened her steps, that she might overtake her, and tell her what she had seen, and entreat her to be watchful, and faithful, and patient, to the end, in her life's work; for she had herself seen that its results would all be known when those golden books should be unclasped—that she must not think any duty which fell in her way to do, trivial, for surely there was an angel over her right shoulder, or one over her left, who would record it all.

Eager to warn her of this, she gently touched her. The traveler turned, and she recognized, or seemed to recognize—no matter! Startled and alarmed, she awoke and found herself in tears—The gray light of morning struggled through the half open shutter, the door was ajar, and merry faces were peeping in.

"Wish you a happy New Year, mamma—wish you a HAPPY NEW YEAR?"

She returned the merry greeting heartily.—She seemed to have entered on a new existence—she had found her way through the mazes where she had been entangled, and light was now about her path. The angel over the right shoulder, whom she had seen in her dream, had assured her that her life work was bound up in that golden book, and its final results would be known—had assumed her what was duty. Now she saw plainly enough, what she had not seen before, that while it was right and important for her to cultivate, as far as she could, her own mind and heart, it was equally right and equally important for her to perform faithfully all those little household duties and cares on which the comfort and virtue of her family depended—they had acquired a new dignity from the records of that golden pen, and they could not be neglected without danger.

Sad thoughts and misgivings, and ungratified longings, seemed all to have taken their flight with the old year; and it was with a new resolution and a cheerful hope, and a happy heart that she welcomed the NEW YEAR.—Boston Traveller.

A GOOD REASON.—A country pedagogue, says the Carpet Bag, had two pupils—one he was very partial to, and to the other very severe. One morning it happened that these two were late, and were called out to account for it.

"You must have heard the bell, boys; why did you not come?"

"Please, sir," said the favorite, "I was dreamin' that I was goin' to Californy, and I thought that the school bell was the steamboat bell as I was goin' in."

"Very well, sir," said the master, (glad of any pretext to excuse his favorite,) "and now, sir, (turning to the other,) what have you to say?"

"Pleas, sir," said the puzzled boy, "I—I—was waitin' to see Tom off!"

RUFUS KING & CO.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

From Madison.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE SENTINEL.

MADISON, February 16th, 1852.

Numerous petitions and remonstrances relative to the Maine Liquor Law were presented this morning. The committee to which these matters are referred are very properly waiting to get at the sentiments of the people before they report.

Numerously signed remonstrances also were read from settlers upon the Fox River Improvement lands, against the passage of the bill which proposes to raise the price of those lands to $2,50. With regard to the general subject of the Improvement and its management, I learn that Messrs. Alban and Moore, delegated from the joint committee to proceed to Oshkosh and examine the books, have returned and will shortly report. It is understood that their report is favorable to the Officers and Commissioners; and, indeed, it could not very well be otherwise, for the books would not be likely to show any wrong, were wrong done. I only wish to say here that there has either been the most outrageous villainy practised, by various persons belonging to the party long dominant in the State, prompted either by personal or political malice, in making charges, bold though vague, against those in charge of the Improvement; or else there has been great wrong done by the managers of that work, and those who are responsible for the charges should be compelled to prove them, or stand convicted by the people of most shameful conduct. But a mere glance at the books is not sufficient to ascertain any wrong, supposing wrong to have been done.

It is insisted, too, I ought to say, by many, that the sales of these Improvement lands, have thus far been made in accordance with the provisions of the grant by Congress. It is a matter, the truth of which is known by those living along the line of the work. Certainly, however, the proposition to select and bring into market immediately the balance of the lands (200,000 acres) cannot be in accordance with the terms of the grant. No one in our State can be interested in any way in delaying the progress of the Improvement, but the interest is entirely the other way. I hope full justice will be done to the subject—to the laws under which the work progresses, and to those who have had the charge of it. Justice to the latter cannot, however, be done, until a proper commission makes a searching examination.

The Richland Co. Seat was finally settled this morning at Richland Centre, by the passage of the Senate bill to that effect.

The subject of the Clerks in the State Offices will come up again shortly. I learn that a part of the payments called for, for extra clerkhire, comes from the Commissioners of School and University Lands for services in their Department. It would be a very creditable act on the part of the Legislature to make sufficient appropriations hereafter for clerks in these offices. The estimates and appropriations of $300 for each office, are simply absurd. Nobody supposes that that amount will be sufficient, and the only object of a restriction of the kind seems to be to limit in appearance the expenditures provided for by one legislature, and throw upon the next one the responsibility of providing for deficiences. As it is, all of the departments have applied for extra clerkhire.

Our city Charter passed the Senate this morning. I notice a few alterations from the bill as it was sent here, as follows:

Sec. 29 of Chap. III is an additional section, and provides that the comptroller shall keep a record of his doings, open to the public, and shall not be interested in any contract.

Sec. 2 of Chap II, is new and provides that no order or warrant drawn on ward or city funds, previous to the taking effect of this act, nor any order drawn for any debt contracted previous thereto, shall be received by the city treasurer on payment of any tax or assessment levied in pursuance of this act, but orders issued in payment of special taxes or improvements shall be receivable therefor.

Addition to Sec. 2, Chap. VIII provides that the acts of a majority of the assessors of a ward shall be binding.

Sec. 26, Chap. VIII, is new, and provides that suits to set aside assessments or special taxes, or to set aside deeds executed in consequence of non-payment of taxes and sale of premises, unless the plaintiff shall first tender or deposite the amount of the taxes, &c.

All of the other amendments are merely verbal corrections. The bill was referred in Assembly to the members from our county. I do not think there will be much, if any opposition to it in the House.

The invitation of Milwaukee to the Executive and Legislative Departments of the State was read to both Houses to-day. There is a very strong disposition on the part of many of the members to accept the hospitalities of the city, so liberally offered. The only objection raised by any is the time which would be necessarily occupied, say 2½ or 3 days. Considering the length of time to which the session will be necessarily protracted, it may be that a recess of 2 or 3 days would not be unacceptable to the members. They have certainly worked hard thus far, having had afternoon sessions, Saturdays as well as other days, throughout their stay here. Certainly I should be glad to have all of the members visit our beautiful city, and I know its people well enough to be satisfied that they would have "a good time generally."—We can know more about the subject in a day or two.

W. H. W.

☞ The Sentinel, of this morning, denies its own utterance, original and adopted, respecting the venality of the Government officers, and their annual purchase by the Bank.—Free Democrat.

False! The Sentinel "denied" nothing that it has uttered on this subject, whether "original" or "adopted."

When we have made such charges against the Bank, as the Sentinel has, we shall be willing to be set down as its worst enemy.—Free Dem.

False again! We have made no "charges" of any sort, "against the Bank."

On Tuesday the Free Dem. spoke of the Sentinel as the "accredited organ of the Bank," and yesterday sets us down as "its worst enemy."—These "weak inventions" offset each other and render comment, or contradiction superfluous.

HOW IS THIS?—Mr. PEAR, from the Select Committee on the Fox and Wisconsin Rivers Improvement, has introduced a bill, to amend the several acts relating to the Improvement, and to provide a fund for its completion, which commences thus:

Section 1. "For the purpose of meeting all liabilities, incurred by the State, on account of the improvements of said rivers," &c. the unsold lands shall be brought forthwith into market at a minimum price of $2,50 per acre.

If our memory serves us the Attorney General has just reported, in answer to the resolution of the Assembly, that the State had incurred no liabilities on this score. Why then this provision to "meet liabilities" which do not exist?

BY LEAD TEAM EXPRESS.—The Wisconsin of last evening had further advices from Madison, by its favorite conveyance, in relation to the "broad-side" poured into the Sentinel for "contumacy" &c. in venturing to doubt the wisdom or expediency of the quo warranto. The Wisconsin is entitled to great credit for its extraordinary enterprise in securing this exclusive and important intelligence.

LEGISLATIVE BALL.—A grand festival is announced for Monday evening next, in honor of our expected guests from Madison. We are requested to invite the Members of the Committee of Arrangements, one and all, to meet this evening at 8 o'clock at the United States Hotel, to settle all preliminaries.

THE CHARTER PASSED!

Our Telegraph advices from Madison bring the news that the City Charter has passed. Our City election, therefore, is to be held on the first Tuesday in March, a week from Tuesday next.

There is barely time to give the ten days' notice required, and the Common Council hold a meeting this afternoon to make the necessary arrangements.

OUR GUESTS FROM MADISON.

We learn by Telegraph that both Houses have agreed to adjourn from Friday evening of this week to Thursday morning next. In the Assembly the motion was carried by a vote of 33 to 19, and in the Senate without a division. A number of the Members and the State Officers also, we trust, will avail themselves of the opportunity thus offered to accept the proffered hospitalities of our citizens and attend the Birth-night Ball to be given in their honor on Monday evening next. We hope that our citizens of all parties and pursuits will unite in extending to our distinguished guests a cordial welcome to Milwaukee, and will spare no pains to make their visit an agreeable one.

The Next State Fair.

The Madison Democrat of Monday last has the following complimentary remarks upon the decision of the Executive Committee of the State Agricultural Society, locating the next State Fair at this point:

The Committee, after a free canvass of the above offers, decided to accept the first, and accordingly located the Fair at the city of Milwaukee and designated the sixth, seventh and eighth days of October as the time.

At the same meeting, the committee previously appointed on that subject reported a premium list, which was adopted.

The location of the Fair we regard as the very best that could have been made under the circumstances, and we congratulate our Milwaukee friends upon their success. From what we have learned, the next State Fair will present one of the most inviting spectacles ever seen in the west. The Fair of itself will draw a large crowd, but in addition to this, arrangements are making for a splendid military encampment, parade and review to last during the entire three days. This will add greatly to the interest of the occasion. Milwaukee will have to bestir herself to accomodate the immense assemblage, but from the known hospitality of its citizens, we doubt not that all expectations will be fully met.

STRAWS, &c.—The Washington correspondent of the Madison Argus, discoursing about matters and things in general, stumbles upon the following truth:

The error into which the new Speaker fell, in the appointment of the committees of the House, has not been repaired. I allude to the commerce committee, particularly, upon which not a northwestern lake man, nor a south-western river man was placed. Thus, it is perceived, our great internal commerce is left to take care of itself, save only the incidental action which will affect it by the general operations of the committee.

Mr. Speaker BOYD, in thus giving the go-by to our River and Harbor Interests, did no more than he was expected to do. The democratic majority in the House, whose votes made him Speaker, were perfectly well aware that he had always voted against River and Harbor Appropriations, and had a right to presume that he would arrange his committees in accordance with his peculiar views. The result justified this expectation and furnished another striking proof of "democratic" hostility to River and Harbor Improvements.

DISTRIBUTING THE "HARMONY."—We had supposed that the democratic "love-feast," last week wiped out all old scores, settled past differences and made the party whole again. It is with no little surprise and disappointment, therefore, that we find in yesterday's Commercial an onslaught upon those who proposed and those who attended, this family festival, for various misdemeanors which are more particularly set forth in the subjoined extract:

It was, as we understood it, the object of these meetings to induce a better understanding among those who had heretofore differed, and in honorable concession leave behind them all matters which have or might destroy the harmony of the party, and which were not of a nature requiring political action. Had such a course been pursued, good would have resulted: but the very reverse was the case. Every bone of contention that the party have growled over for the last five years, and every new matter of difference, whether political or not, were thrown in and combated over, as if the democratic party had no higher aim and end than to become the arbiter of personal feuds and local jealousies. What might be expected from such a proceeding, was realized: the party is as it was, refreshed in the remembrance of all past, real or imaginary, wrongs. Whether such an end was sought or not, can be best answered by those who availed themselves of the opportunity to urge upon the meeting questions not contemplated in the call and over which the meeting had no control.

Big Lead Struck.

By a note received in town last evening, we learn that the Messrs. Alfred and Jackson Soward, have struck a cave full of mineral, west of the Sinsinnawa Mound, about half a mile south of Fairplay, Wis. The writer says he thinks there is 500,000 lbs in sight. We shall give a more complete account of this lead next week.—Gal. Gaz., 14th inst.

At the price that lead now brings, such a discovery as the one mentioned in the above paragraph is almost equal to the best pickings in California. The wonder is, that with such Agricultural and Mineral resources as our Western Counties possess, so many of their inhabitants should be tempted to try the doubtful and distant chances of a trip to the Gold regions.

DEMOCRATIC MEETING IN MILWAUKEE.—An adjourned meeting of the Democrats of Milwaukee, was held at Military Hall, on Saturday evening. A platform was reported by a committee appointed for that purpose, which was adopted. We are informed that ground was taken in that platform against the Maine Liquor Law. If this be true, or if the Democratic Party of Milwaukee have meddled with this question in any manner, we believe that a suicidal act has been committed, and regret that men who were opposed to meddling with Land Reform in the last State Convention, could not let the Temperance question alone.—Waukesha Democrat.

The Democrat's criticism upon the proceedings at the Military Hall "Love Feast," is well founded. It was a great mistake, as they will find ere long, to lug the Liquor Law into this new platform. The attempt to make a political test of such a question, is, as it should be, futile.

☞ A Ladies' Soiree will be held in the Masonic Hall, Bichard's Block, Spring Street, on Friday evening next, at 7 o'clock, for the purpose of raising funds to commence a building for the Milwaukee Normal Institute.

An agreeable entertainment, consisting of Addresses, Music, Tableaux, Refreshments, &c., may be expected. The most complete arrangements have been made for the amusement of the company which combined with the great importance of the object in view, and the low price of admission, will doubtless attract a large audience.

Tickets 25 cents.

☞ We are informed that of sixty passengers who left Michigan city on Monday bound for the east, fifty-six of them took the Toledo route, while four took the Detroit and Canada route.

The Michigan Central Rail Road must "look to its laurels." The best thing it can do is to hurry up the construction of its branch to Grand Haven, and the establishment of a Steam Ferry from that port to Milwaukee. It may then compete successfully with its Southern rival.

MASONIC FESTIVAL.—The annual party of the Masons will be given at Gardiner's Hall this evening, and will be as attractive and entertaining as first-rate music, pleasant company, palatable refreshments, and attentive hosts can make it.—The reputation which our Masonic friends have now by their previous festivals will help them to a numerous attendance to-night.

TEMPERANCE LECTURES.—The first of Mr. JOHNSTON's series of Temperance Lectures, illustrated by the Magic Lantern, will be given at the Free Congregational Church on Main-st., this evening. We cheerfully commend them to public attention and patronage.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.—The officers of the Fire Department will notice the call of the Chief Engineer for a meeting this afternoon. It is proposed, we understand, to receive the State Officers and Members of the Legislature, on their arrival here, with a Grand Torchlight Procession.

THE STEAM MARINE OF THE UNITED STATES.

At the last session of the Treasury to ascertain and report the official statistics of our Steam Marine, external and internal, showing its magnitude, its disasters, travel to and from commercial cities, "human movements" along the great inland and tide water lines of travel, and such other information as would exhibit to the commercial world reliable details and aggregates of the several districts and the entire whole. The Secretary of the Treasury has reported this valuable information to Congress, and we gleam therefrom the following aggregate results and facts, as presented in a Washington letter to the Albany Register, dated Jan. 21:—

EXTERNAL STEAM MARINE.

The steam marine of the United States on the Atlantic coast from Passamaquoddy Bay to Cape Sable, consists of 46 ocean steamers, 274 ordinary steamers, 65 propellers, and 59 ferry boats, having a tonnage of 154,270 tons.

The steam marine of the Gulf of Mexico, from Cape Sable to the Rio Grande, consists of 12 ocean steamers, 35 ordinary steamers, 2 prop. with a tonnage of 23,244 tons.

And the steam marine on the Pacific coast consists of 37 ocean steamers, 13 ordinary steamers, having 31,986 tonnage.

On the Atlantic coast there are 116 high pressure and 312 low pressure boats, number of officers and crews 6,348, number of passengers during the year ending July 1, 1852, 33,114,782, the average number of miles travelled, 8,118,987.

On the Gulf of Mexico there are 98 high and 9 low pressure boats, 3,447 officers and crews, 148,-000 passengers during the year, and the average number of miles travelled 1,361,950.

On the Pacific coast there are 3 high and 47 low pressure boats, 1,449 officers and crews, and the number of passengers during the year was 79,-207.

The aggregate are, ocean steamers 96, ordinary steamers 322, propellers 67, ferry boats 80—total, 625 boats. Total tonnage 313,500; high pressure boats 213, low pressure boats 420, number of officers and crews 11,770 passengers during the year ending July 1, 1851, 33,342,846.

Marine Disasters.

The shipwrecks on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and the Gulf of Mexico, during the year, were 50 ships, 59 brigs, 190 schooners, 9 sloops, and 20 steamers—total 328; of which 278 were lost by tempest, 14 by fire, 15 by collision, 19 snagged, and 2 by explosions. The number of lives lost was 318.

The "Human Movements" by steamboats on the principal tide-water lines during the year, were as follows:

	Passengers.
On Long Island Sound,	302,397
On Hudson River,	995,100
Between New York and Philadelphia by steamboats,	840,000
On the Potomac and James Rivers, and Chesapeake Bay,	422,100
On the Gulf of Mexico,	169,200
On the Pacific Coast,	79,200

SHIPWRECKS.

In 26 districts on the Atlantic coast there were 160 vessels lost, valued at $1,559,171, on which insurance was paid to the amount of $968,850.

In N. Y. the Marine Ins. paid was,	$3,520,161
In Philadelphia, " "	906,616
In Boston, " "	551,865

And total amount of marine (not inland) insurance paid the last year, ending July 1, 1851, is estimated at $6,227,000.

THE INLAND STEAM MARINE.

This comprise three grand divisions—the Northern Frontier, the Ohio Basin, and the Mississippi Valley, and its magnitude exceeds the most extravagant estimates. I glean from Mr. Gallagher's exhibit the following official aggregates and facts:

	Steamers.	Tonage.	Crew	Passen'rs
Northern Frontier has	166	63,165	2,955	1,313,200
Ohio Basin has	348	62,101	3,338	3,464,667
Mississippi River has	353	97,967	6,414	822,593

Making the grand total of inland steam marine, to consist of 765 steamers, with 204,613 tonnage, manned by 17,607 officers and crew, which carried during the year ending July 1, 1851, five millions, eight hundred and sixty thousand, eight hundred and fifty passengers.

SOME OF THE SECTIONAL AGGREGATES.

	Steamers.	Tonage.	Passengers
Detroit District has,	47	16,469	721,930
Erie,	7	5,690	60,000
Buffalo,	42	23,990	197,837
Chicago,	4	632	3,900
Oswego,	9	3,537	22,830
Cuyahoga,	13	6,418
Vermont,	11	3,129	155,000
St. Louis,	131	31,834	367,795
Cincinnati,	111	21,709	2,460,796
Pittsburgh,	112	16,963	496,661
New Orleans,	113	34,786	434,000

It should be noticed, that of the 2,460,796 passengers in the Cincinnati district, 2,190,000 are by ferry boats—that there are 362,000 ferry boat passengers in the Detroit district,—that 24,009,550 ferry boat passengers are included in the 33,342,846 Atlantic boat passengers, and that passengers are credited to the boats and districts where enrolled, and sent to the place between which the steamer happens to run.

The entire stream marine of Great Britain and her dependencies, is stated at 1184 steamers, with a tonnage of 152,089 tons. While the aggregate of the external and internal steam marine of the United States consists of 1390 steamers, with a tonnage of 497,113 tons. Showing that either the internal or external steam marine of the United States, exceeds the whole steam marine of Great Britain and her dependencies by tens of thousands of tonnage.

The losses on the lakes and rivers, during the year ending July 1, 1851, were 35 boats by tempest, 30 by fire, 18 by collision, 32 by snags. Lives lost on lakes 67, and on the rivers 698. Total 698.

TRAVEL.

The travel to and from internal commercial centres is as follows:

To and from St. Louis	367,785	passengers.
" Pittsburgh	466,856	"
" Buffalo	622,423	"
" Chicago	199,893	"
Total	1,656,957

The resident population of these four cities is but 217,946.

The passengers to and from Buffalo "come and go," as follows:

By steamer,	157,257
Propellers,	14,300
Ferry boats,	36,230
Buffalo and Rochester Railroad,	263,386
Niagara Falls Railroad,	119,209
Erie Canal,	43,000
Total,	622,423

The "Human Movements" upon the 3 great inland lines of travel, during the year ending July 1, 1851, were as follows:

N. Frontier,	1,026,750	1,325,511	56,000 27,872 481,510
Miss Valley,	748,515		19,583 134,050
Ohio Basin,	952,051	765,936	28,773 2,451,916

The increase of tonnage during eight years is at Buffalo 19,217 tons, Presque Isle 2,778 tons, Detroit 14,416 tons, at Cuyahoga 4,563 tons. The steamboat tonnage of the upper lakes has more than quadrupled in eight years, and doubled in the Mississippi Valley in nine years.

From the introduction of steamboats to 1848, the disasters on the Mississippi river and its tributaries have been by fire 1011 by collision, 45; by snags, 469. Total, 618. The original cost was $8,999, 748. Depreciation in value, $3,176, 757. Final losses, $4,719,991. The loss in 1849 is stated at no less than $2,000,000.

The average tonnage of steamers on Lake Erie is 437 tons; in the Ohio Basin 206 tons, and the Mississippi Valley, 273 tons.

Of the 161 steam vessels of the lakes 105 are ordinary steamers, 52 are propellers and 7 are ferry boats.

Of the 601 steam vessels on the rivers, 558 are ordinary steamers and 43 ferry boats.

Of the 558 ordinary steamers on the rivers, 317 are enrolled in the Ohio Basin district, and 241 in Mississippi Valley district.

Of the 157 ordinary steamers and propellers on the lakes, 31 are enrolled on Lakes Champlain and Ontario, and the St Lawrence; 66 on Lake Erie, and 60 at Detroit and the lakes above.

LEGISLATIVE ABSENTEES.—The Madison Express of Monday last contains the following just censures upon a very objectionable practice which prevails in all of our State Legislatures, and calls loudly for the pruning knife of Reform:

On a call of the Assembly, this morning, it was found that twenty-three members of that body were absent. This is all wrong. When a man accepts of the post of legislator, he should make up his mind to discharge its duties faithfully. He well knows that he will be compelled to be absent from his home, and if his business will not permit of such absence, he should not accept the office. We object to the wholesale and continued granting of leave of absence, as it is now practiced, and always has been. Let it be understood that the pay stops, when members are away on leave, and the practice would soon cease; and the pay in such cases will stop, if the constitution is adhered to as it should be.

☞ A bill has been introduced into the Legislature for the formation of the Seventh Judicial Circuit, to be composed of the counties of Dane, Columbia, Portage, Sauk and Marathon. Wonder who asked for any such law? Not the people, certainly. They are satisfied with present arrangements, and we have yet to hear any person advocate such a change.—Argus.

Don't you understand? Some lawyer wants to be Judge of that Circuit—that's all.—Statesman.

STATE AGRICULTURAL ROOMS,
Madison, Feb. 16, 1852.

JAMES KNEELAND, Esq., Ch'n Ex. Com. of the M. and M. R. R. Co.

SIR: The Executive Committee of the Wisconsin State Agricultural Society having decided to hold their next Annual Fair at the City of Milwaukee, on the 6th, 7th and 8th days of October next, are desirous of making an arrangement by which persons attending the Fair, can be carried over the M. and M. Rail Road at half price, and stock and articles for exhibition free—under such management as may be prescribed by your Committee.

Should you favor this arrangement, will you do us the favor to lay the same before the Board, or Committee, at the earliest possible moment, and inform me as to the result.

OFFICE OF THE M. & M. R. R. CO.
Milwaukee, Feb. 18, 1852.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter, dated the 16th inst., and the proposition therein contained, has been submitted by me to the Executive Committee of the Board.

The Committee have authorized me to inform you, that the Railroad Company will transport visitors, articles and stock, for the Agricultural Fair at Milwaukee, on the terms proposed, to the extent of the accommodations of the road, under suitable arrangements to be made between the agent of the Railroad Company and of the Society.

It may perhaps be necessary to submit the matter to the Board for its formal approval, which, without doubt, will be given at the

BREADSTUFFS FIRM.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.

The R. M. Steamer Canada arrived here this morning. Cotton, after the sailing of the Pacific, became quiet. Prices unsteady. News by the Franklin caused a brisk demand, and prices of previous week ½ of a penny above Friday's rates. Should next steamers from America bring advices of active market, prices here must improve. Large business doing in Manchester.

PROVISIONS, &c.—Bacon unattended to.

Beef brings extreme prices. Sales of Lard reduced in consequence of high prices asked.

Tallow—brisk sales of 300 hogsheads, 600 tierces at 35s@37s 6d.

Pork—no stock, and no inquiry.

Markets steady for Breadstuffs, though not much buoyancy. Extreme prices scarcely maintained, but no disposition to give way in Flour, or Wheat. Indian Corn 3d@6d cheaper. The Canada brings 47 passengers. She encountered very heavy weather. The City of Glasgow would not be able to resume her voyage without re-shipping her cargo.

London Money Market unchanged. Consols and Money for account 93¼@93¾.

FRANCE.

France continues to be agitated by the Anti-Orleanist Decrees, and public reprobation of the measure was expressed as loudly as the Reign of Terror permitted. The Constitutional of Jan. 27 states, that in consequence of the dissatisfaction of his friends and the shock sustained by the public mind, by reason of these Decrees, the President has resolved to submit their ratification to the Senate and Legislative Assembly, but the Moniteur of the 20th denounced the statement, upon Government authority, and on the same day, the former journal was placed under censorship for the article.

It was reported in some quarters that altho' the President would not rescind, nor modify these decrees, they would not be enforced to their full extent. A paper had been published, signed by most eminent members of the Bar, declaring the decrees illegal.

The Moniteur publishes a financial statement, estimating deficiency for the year at Twenty-five Millions of francs, which was considered satisfactory on the Bourse.

Mr. Fould had refused to resume office, unless extensive modifications were made in Orleanist decrees. Mr. De Morny demanded a material change of policy. Mr. Dupin's resignation did not seem to surprise the President, but none of the Journals were permitted to publish it!

Prince Joseph Buonaparte has been nominated President of the Senate, and M. Magnard, a Senate, the first Vice-President.

FIRE AT VICKSBURG.—The barn attached to the Sacramento House, at the village of Vicksburg, on the Plank Road, was destroyed by fire on Wednesday night last. The fire was discovered about midnight, but too late to save anything. Three pair of horses and a load of barley belonging to a teamster, together with a couple of wagons were destroyed. We understand a pair of valuable horses belonging to Deacon Forbes, of our village, were consumed. There was no insurance. The property belongs to Mr. Ira Lounsbury, of Emmett, and was occupied by Mr. Robinson. Suspicions are rife as to the cause of the fire, but we have not heard that anything has been elicited, to criminate any individual.—Watertown Register.

G. GRÆSSLE'S

PRESSED, FIRE-PROOF TILING.

CERTIFICATES OF RECOMMENDATION.

BY the present, I attest my entire satisfaction with the fire proof of my house, covered with the press, fire-proof Tile, invented by Mr. Græssle; having found them perfectly secure during snow-storms, rains, wind and intense cold. I hereby take occasion to recommend said roof covering to every house-builder, inviting them to satisfy themselves by ocular inspection of the excellent quality of the same. ENNO MEYER,
Druggist, 371 W. Water-st., 2nd ward.
Milwaukee, Feb. 3, 1852.

The above I found true in every respect, as to the roof of my house, covered with the same tile, invented by Mr. Græssle. AUGUST KRUG,
Brewer, Chestnut-st., 2nd ward.

The undersigned, having carefully examined the pressed roofing Tiles, invented by Mr. Græssle, have found them perfectly answering the purpose intended. Their practical and tasteful construction recommend this kind of tile, not only as a fire proof and perfectly water-proof covering, but above all for its durability. The ridges and channels not only exclude the entering of snow by rain-water, but, by their firm and precise joining of one into the other, they give to the single Tile as well as to the whole covering an absolutely immovable position and secure connection. Besides this, Mr. Græssle's method of burning the Tiles, deprives them of the injurious tendency to absorb water, making them in this way durable; and joining to the above another virtue, viz. that of dispensing with repairs. The undersigned therefore consider ourselves fully justified in recommending to the building community the above roofing Tile as an excellent and valuable material.

OTTO SCHWARTZ } Architects
VICTOR SCHULTE, } & Builders.
Milwaukee, Feb. 5, 1852.

To G. Græssle.—I have examined the Roofing Tile made by you, and have no hesitation in recommending them to general use, and particularly as a fire-proof roof.
G. W. MYGATT, Architect.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR 1852.

AS the season for emigration approaches, we beg to acquaint our friends and the public with our Arrangements for the year 1852, and would inform them, that with an increase of business—for which we are grateful—we are placed in possession of greater facilities for conducting the Emigration and Foreign Exchange Business than any other House in the World, and for which—in a great measure—we have to thank a discerning public for their continued patronage.

Since the commencement of last year a large number of magnificent ships have been added to the various popular lines for which we are the Agents, and several others are now in course of construction, all of which will be fitted up for passengers in the most superior manner, and commanded by men of long experience.

TAPSCOTT—whose well known care and attention to passengers embarking by our line has won for him his present high reputation among the emigrating public.
